Terrible Encounter with a Grizzly Bear.

Last week a man named Walpole, who resides in Lassen county, California, had a fearful combat with a grizzly, but we are happy to say, came off triumphant. It appears that Mr. Walpole started out early in the morning of the day on which the adventure occurred, for the purpose of visiting a deer-lick. He had his rifle, bowie knife, and a large deer hound with him, and was crossing a deep canyon, when he espied a huge grizzly about fifty or seventy-five yards off. The opportunity was too good a one to let pass, so he pulled up and blazed away; but his aim was not very accurate, and he only succeeded in wounding the animal, and before he had time to reload his rifle the bear was close upon him, and there was no alternative but to stand his ground and trust in Providence and in his weapons. The bear came right rfter him, and Mr. W., who was on the alert, succeeded in hitting him one on the head with the butt of his rifle, but ere he could repeat the blow his bearship returned the compliment, and dealt him one on the shoulder that paralyzed him for a second. Being now fully alive to his situation, he drew his bowie knife and made a lunge at bruin, and succeeded in planting his knife deep in the beast's breast. This only enraged the animal still more, and seizing his destroyer in his powerful arms, gave him an embrace that he will not be apt to forget for some time, and which rendered him totally unconscious. He lay where the bear had dropped him until late in the afternoon, when a neighbor who was pasing was attracted to the spot, and his astonishment may be imagined when, upon going a short distance from the wounded man, he found the bear dead as a door nail. The animal measured 11 feet in length, and weighed in the neighborhood of 1,400 pounds. Mr. Walpole, although badly bruised, is not seriously injured, and he says he is "a wiser, if not a better man."

Englishmen still sell their wives, though the price has risen. At Crowle in Lincolnshire, a certain William Liggitt, a pork butcher, sold his wife the other day for £40. The articles of sale were drawn up at a solicitor's office, the money was paid and the wife handed over to the purchaser, Chapman Hidd, landlord of the Fishmonger's Arms.

Burton, while traveling on a steamboat, seated himself and called for a beefsteak. The waiter furnished him with a small strip of the article. Taking it upon his fork turning it over and examining it, with one of his peculiar looks, he cooly remarked: "Yes, that's it, bring me some."

SUDDEN DEATH.—A woman of the town, named Ella DeVere, residing on Cedar street, died suddenly yesterday morning. It seems that the woman has for some time past been indulging in a cousre of unusual dissipation, and frequently visited Chinatown where she became addicted to the practice of smoking opium, and the night before she came to her death, we understand, she took an overdose of laudanum. Deceased had lived here for some time, and for a woman of her class is said to have possessed a wonderfully good education. "How sad unhelpful tears flow." R. R. Reveille.

A Chinaman in our county jail, learning that a bill was before the Legislature providing for the amputation of Chinese pigtails or queues of those of that race who should be convicted under its provisions, decided to anticipate the passage of the bill and at once cut his queue off with his own hands, thus depriving Sheriff Harper the pleasure or displeasure of performing that duty. The Chinaman alluded to says he is now "alle same Melican man; no go back to China; no likee dam Chinaman, heap swear dam lies." John's opinion of his countrymen holds good until rebutting testimony is produced.—R. R. Reveille.

There is one State in the Union that has taken to tree-planting with a vigor that promises the best results. The farmers of Minnesota set out during the past year over ten millions of cuttings, most of which, it is reported, are doing well. The young trees consist largely of cottonwoods and white willows, but there is also a liberal sprinkling of maple, larch and white oak.

Some young men who were traveling among the White Mountains recently stopped at a farmhouse and called for milk. After they had drank a large quantity, the woman of the house brought them a large bowlful, with the touching remark, "One would think, gentlemen, you had never been weaned."

A Warning.

There are certain men now hanging about the saloons and brothels of this town who had better seek other quarters. Ever since the murderous assault on Mr. L. D. Wickes some weeks since, a feeling of just indignation has been growing against this class of thieves, and the time is surely coming when our citizens will give attention to the matter. We would not counsel a resort to violence, but when honest citizens find their laws powerless they are apt to remember a certain process which has before been tried on thieves and found effective. Things have conspired to render our people rather careless as to whether the right man is caught or not, so he be a suspicious character, and we very much fear that our town may be made the scene of an unfortunate sensation.

In Virginia at one time the laws were found practically inoperative, and to the surprise of the disorderly class men were found hanging to posts and hoisting works, in satisfaction of an outraged community. We very much hope that our town may escape this necessity, but honest men will some times do unreasonable things when afflicted by thieves.

We have several well known offenders in our midst—men who do nothing but steal—and we warn these that the community will not support them much longer. Their present course is sure to result in some calamity which will bring speedy vengeance upon their heads. Men have, before now, organized into armed bodies and visiting brothels, dance houses and opium dens, rid their community of thieves and villains. They talk of doing so now, and we say particularly to each thief or vagrant who may read this, You had better go away. We do not approve of violence; we do not like the workings of enraged justice, and hence we want to prevent any such trials and sentences. An enraged community is hard to meet, and a dessolute life is hard to explain. The cloud is gathering, and unless it pass over in peace and quietness the storm will be a severe one.

[Communicated.]

The "Enterprise" and Gen. Clarke.

The Enterprise is in a great state of excitement because of the seeming probability of the defeat of Flood & O'Brien's little bill. For weeks that paper has devoted all its energies to the very commendable task of inducing legislators to violate their most solemn pledges, wrung from them by a jealous and exacting people, on every husting in the State. And now, it seems, that the spectacle of a citizen who does not live in Storey county and consequently is not a subject of the monarchs of that little kingdom, appearing on behalf of the few thousands of tax paying citizens who do not own silver mines, and sternly directing the hesitating attention of the people's representatives to these obligations, causes the Enterprise to writhe with rage. It is not happy in its illustrations. For instance it alludes (not in the best taste) to the fact that General Clarke's taxes are delinquent, and seems to recognize no difference between his case and that of the bonanza people. Listen, O profoundest of reasoners, to the story of what General Clarke did not do: He did not allow his taxes to become delinquent, suit to be entered against him, and then go before the Legislature, saying, "My taxes are too high; unless you reduce them by law I will not pay the money that I owe, and my county will have to close its courts and schools because there will be no money in its treasury." The most shameful feature of all this piratical business is the fact that the sovereign State of Nevada condescends for a moment to treat with its defiant and disobedient subjects. Not as humble petitioners, with the Constitution in one hand and prayers for relief in the other, do these haughty money kings knock at the doors of the Capitol. With stern and defiant threats this manifesto is thrown at the heads of the people, and we are told in plain terms that unless the "Compromise" is accepted, the State shall be bankrupted. What a reckless disregard of the force and meaning of the word is exhibited in such a use of it. Compromise! Ay, such a compromise as ancient Rome was accustomed to exact from vanquished nations. In homely Saxon, such a "compromise" is known as tribute. If the bill becomes a law, what security have the people that the Comstock magnates will perform their part of the "Compromise?" No stipulation they can make to influence legislation could be enforced by the courts, and certainly the moral obligations to pay under such circumstances are no weightier than those already existing between the honest citizen and the State under its tax laws. But listen to the Enterprise on the subject of pledges:

To those legislators who feel bound by their pledges, we wish to say that no pledge made in a political convention is intended to outlive the wishes of the people in whose behalf that pledge was made. More than half of the people of this State, representing more than half of the property of the State, demand that the pledge taken at the convention shall be so modified as that this bill shall be supported. We hear no protest from any other quarter. Business men all over this State want just as few lawsuits as possible. They want no unnecessary clashings between the mining interests and the other interests of the State. We ask legislators to take these things into consideration when this bill is brought before them.

Suppose this compromise is rejected, and the State loses its suits, what answer will legislators make to their constituents?

What do the people say to this? Let it be remembered, however, that, while it may be true that business men want "as few lawsuits as possible," the people all over the State wanted the lawsuits against the mining companies to stand, for they were pending when in State and County Conventions the people with one accord cried out: "No compromise with defaulting citizens; no modification of the Bullion Tax." The Enterprise hears no protests. Perhaps it is just barely possible that the people have some little faith in the honesty and honor of their representatives, and still rely on the solemn pledges given. What "protest" could add any force to the positive instructions of the Conventions? Suppose "the State loses its suits?" With this the Legislature has nothing to do. The people considered that contingency at the time of the Conventions. It is not a new question which is presented after the election of the representatives.

In conclusion we say, all honor to Gen. Clarke for his able and manly fight against the "compromise." It is refreshing to find a man who is so poor that he can not pay his taxes at the proper time, yet is too rich in integrity to be purchased—too wealthy in his dauntless courage to be coerced into a servile service.

Reno, Feb. 17, 1877.

TELEGRAPHIC.

A Times New Orleans special says: The would-be assassin is handsome and aged about 25 years. He said he had been about two months in the South, living at Mobile. He says the attempt was made from a patriotic motive. His one-armed companion is a dark-looking man and is like many of the desperate Sicilians about New Orleans. He refuses to talk.

A World New Orleans special says: Coan and Judge Boreman, who were present, say Weldon's pistol snapped, and Packard was shot accidentally by a pistol aimed at his assailant.

A special to the Herald from New Orleans says: When captured the assassin only said, "Well, I have shot the scoundrel, anyhow." Ex-Governor Ham noticed Weldon previously in the room as having a very strange, wild look, and thinks him to have been either insane or laboring under some unnatural excitement. Being interviewed as to who sent him there, he replied, "Nobody." He said he came from Philadelphia with the ambition to save his country, his purpose being to kill Packard and Hayes afterwards. A bottle of whiskey and absynthe was found in his pocket. His appearance, however, was not that of a dissipated person.

This evening Packard was found in his room up stairs sitting on the side of his bed smoking a cigar as usual, quite cool and collected.

Edward Lamb, a favorite actor, was probably fatally burned at the Olympic theatre, New York, by the carelessness of another actor. The theatre narrowly escaped burning, and also a panic.

The Tribune says editorially that the latest Oregon dispatches involve Tilden or his next friend, in much more serious offenses than any yet reported. There is now no question of sheer, undisguised bribery.

Weldon, the would-be assassin of Governor Packard, was formerly a dry goods clerk and had recently been disappointed in love matters

The Oregon election dispatches involve Kelly and Grover in such political knavery as to virtually dishonor them for life. Kelly says he signed dispatches not knowing what was in them.

A Washington telegram says the Electoral Commission have decided that no evidence can be received in the Louisiana case except the electoral certificates. The vote stood 8 to 7. The Commission have now sent for counsel, and upon their arrival will open the votes.

When the Senate Committee concludes its evidence it will probably report a resolution either for the censure of Kelly or his expulsion. Many Senators favor such action. The developments make Grover's admission extremely improbable.

NEW COURT HOUSE. — We learn from the Virginia Chronicle that the new Court House of Storey county was yesterday taken posession of by the County Commissioners. Mr. Burke, the contractor, has held it for some time because the Commissioners would not pay the "bill of extras." A compromise has been effected and the "extras" will be settled by arbitration.

Colonel Preston B. Blumb, the Senator-elect from Kansas, is said to have been successful as a printer, an editor, a lawyer, a soldier, a legislator and a banker. He will be forty years old next October.

The printers of Virginia City are still waiting for the lawyers, doctors, clergymen or other professional class to respond to their challenge for a spelling match.

Never was a sincere word utterly lost, never a magnanimity fell to the ground; there is some heart always to greet and accept it unexpectedly.

MEETING TO-NIGHT.—According to notice which we gave on Thursday night there will be a meeting of citizens this evening at the Court House for the purpose of organizing a fire police. The value of such an organization is certainly patent to every man who was present at the fire on Tuesday morning. Hundreds of dollars worth of goods were stolen during the excitement simply because there was no one to protect them. Twenty-five or thirty men whose duty it should be to protect property and preserve order and discipline at fires, would prove an invaluable aid to the department, and the revenue of thieves would be materially lessened. We hope that our citizens will take an interest in the matter and attend the meeting at the Court House to-night.

The time when the suspicious character perambulates and plys his vocation is between 10 at night and daylight next morning.

Street Talk.

Our citizens are becoming tired of the thieving propensities of a certain class now with us, and to-day there was considerable talk of taking the bull by the horns immediately. When determined men take occasion, during business hours, to discuss the advisibility of extreme measures, it is time for thieves to hunt new pastures. The subject of conversation to-day was, the condition of our town, the frequent attempts at robbery, and the large number of men who are living on what they steal or beg. The most effective methods of weeding out this class have been canvassed. The doings of "601" in Virginia, Carson, Truckee, and elsewhere have been reviewed, together with the men who forfeited their lives by ignoring the wrath of a community. This state of affairs shows plainly that the town is in a dangerous state. A few more offenses are alone necessary to arouse the people into resolute, if not judicious action. We hope that such a course may be happily averted, but for the manner in which we heard men speak of Kirk, Hart, and others who were hung by "601," we fear that the community may resort to extreme measurds. That mob law is entirely wrong, every citizen acknowledges, but there is a time beyond which men cease to think. And unless we are rid of these villains, that time will not be far distant.

LIBRARY MEETING.—Several members of the Reno Library Club met last evening in the Justice's rooms, and after arguing the present condition and prospects, resolved to clear the society of debt and increase the worth and privileges of the club. For this purpose contributions were declared in order, and several members walked up and deposited their mite. An assessment of $2 per head was then levied and a committee consisting of H. H. Hogan and M. J. Smith appointed to collect the same The club have made partial arrangements for suitable rooms at a reasonable price, and will try to occupy them at an early day. The debts of the concern will, however, be paid first, and the society will henceforth travel upon a cash basis. Paying members are requested to call on the committee. The enterprise has excellent objects in view and we hope for a brilliant success.

REGENERATION.—Some good man or woman has taken the trouble to send us one of Moody and Sankey's pamphlets on Regeneration. We have read one sentence in the book, and think it expresses Mr. Moody's entire knowledge upon the subject: "Many who are themselves the subjects of this new birth are at a loss to know what it is, and filled with doubt as to whether they have ever experienced it." We take that to be about correct and exhaustive review of the whole matter hence we read no more. We regret that the book was sent to us, for we don't need it, and it might be of use to the sender. Still it may come handy to set the inkstand on.

A LIFE OF CUSTER.—Mr. Chas. Williams is in Reno canvassing for the above work, and meeting with considerable success. The work is well bound, contains 650 pages, and is, we believe, a careful history of the great cavalry man's career. Beginning with his early youth, the story of a military life is told with exactness and interest down to the heroic death which ended the days of a true knight, a soldier and a man. Those who admire gallantry, and who revere the memory of their defenders, are here afforded an opportunity to review the life of one who stands without a peer for bravery, devotion to his country, and heroism upon its battle fields.

LENT.—Lent in the Episcopal Church is a season of self examination, extra prayer and self denial. It also means "a little less extravagance, a little less pleasure going, a little less money spending and a little less feasting, that we may have time and opportunity to bring our bodies under." The observance of this season is purely voluntary in the Episcopal Church, but in the Roman and Greek Catholic and Oriental Churches the fasting and self denial is made imperative.

The emigrant travel has nearly ceased and other more useful live stock, such as cattle, etc., has taken the place of the festives.

The Lenten service held on Wednesday and Friday evenings at the Episcopal Church will hereafter be held at 4 o'clock P. M. Confirmation class every Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the pastor's study. Lent closes the 1st of April, which is Easter Sunday.

The Riverside meeting has been postponed until Monday evening.

A ONE-LEGGED ELOPER.—The following romantic story is told by the Albany Times:

What there is about a man forty years old, with a wooden leg, to captivate the heart of a Massachusetts Yankee girl of 15, it is difficult to imagine. But Larkin Wilcox, who answers the description, succeeded in doing so, and they started away from Lanesboro, Berkshire county, to be married. He told her he was very wealthy and owned large business blocks in Albany, where he resided, but owing to poor health he came out in the country to work on a farm, to see if he could not get better. Wilcox was arrested, and it was discovered that he was formerly an engineer on the Boston and Albany Railroad and lost his leg by an accident which happened when he was drunk. His residence in Albany was of ten months duration on the hill, for stealing. He was arraigned at Pittsfield, and pleaded guilty to the charge of enticing the young girl away for the purpose of marrying her against the consent of her guardian. He was sentenced to one year in the State Prison, the lowest penalty allowed by the Massachusetts statute for the offense.

ASPIRING FOR FAME.—John Roach, of San Francisco, wants to be famous. He intends to put himself in the way of exploring the profound depths of the ocean, by starting for Cape Horn in a peanut shell of a boat. To be more precise, he wants to build a three-ton boat, 20 feet long, 5 feet beam, and four feet depth of hold, fitted with two masts, the foremast square rigged and the main mast schooner rigged. He also wants to find another man and a boy as totally devoid of discretion as himself. After having succeeded in this, he intends to sail from San Francisco in June for Liverpool, via of Cape Horn and New York, touching at Valparaiso and the Falklands for supplies, and by the blessings of Providence and good luck he expects to get through. He allows seven or eight months for the passage, provided it is a success. Roach has sailed as mate of coasters and deep-sea vesels four teen years, and is confident of his ability to navigate his little craft in any kind of sea. The only obstacle in the way of attempt is the lack of funds for building the boat which he estimates will cost $550.

A NATURAL CURIOSITY.—Near Hipkin's Station, on the road to Silver Lake, there is a natural curiosity which is a wonder to every one who passes the spot. It consists of a boulder of granite, estimated at some 300 pounds in weight, which is lodged on the top of a tree, some forty feet from the ground. The rocky nature of the mass has been ascertained by firing a ball from a rifle, which glanced from it without making any impression. The limbs of the tree at one time evidently grew around and above the obstruction, but have apparently been broken short off by the wind, leaving the boulder reposing securely in its bed. How it got there is a puzzle to every one who has seen it.—Sutter Creek Ensign.

The credit system has been carried to a pretty fine point in some districts, if we may judge from the following dialogue, said to have occurred between a customer and the proprietor:

"Haow's trade, squire?"

"Wall, cash trade's kinder dull naow, major."

"Dun anything ter day?"

"Wall, only a leettle—on credit. Aunt Betsy Pushard has had an egg's worth of tea, and got trusted for it till her speckled pullet lays."

More recent experiments with the great Italian gun have established some important facts. It is now demonstrated beyond doubt that a given thickness of armor offers greater resistance when solid than if divided into plates with teak layers between. A 2,000 pound shot, fired from the 100-ton gun, penetrated nearly thirty-one inches into a sandwiched target thirty-four inches thick, and only fifteen inches into a solid plate twenty-two inches thick.
